

Ya gotta move with the style

From the twenties
to the eighties,
style has changed.
Or has it? It seems that fashion has made an almost complete circle.
Today's fashion crazes are yesterday's fashion crazes with some minor adjustments.
It could be said that we're going back to go forward, but we've got to keep moving or we'll fall behind the times.

ya gotta walk the

While walking the halls of the Mulhall-Orlando schools you are able to see the different styles people are wearing this year. The different styles of watches are really making it big in the fashion line. Even though the Gumby watch didn't get in the top three of the favorite style of watch, it is beautifully modeled by Angela Koch which is one of the many odd watches in her collection. Angela is also wearing a Guess Who T-shirt that was sold as a fundraiser by the Junior Class. She's Hip! She's happening! She's Angela!

"Rain, snow, sleet or hail" was Scott Merrill, Travis Karcher, Louis Karns and Donald Knott's motto this year. If you ever needed these guys before school you always knew to look out in front of the gym.

halls with style

Connelly Wade and Ricky Cook are having an intellectual conversation between classes, and Eddie Betchan and Terry Tressler listen in amazement.

Shelly Vaughn and Keri Adkins spend their noon hour in the gym.

Among the items on a school poll the Eskimo Joe's shirt was voted the favorite with a logo. The favorite style of jeans is stoned-washed, while Reeboks swept polls as the favorite style of shoes. Jean jackets seem to be the style of coat most likely worn, and the Swatch came out on top as the most popular watch of the year. You can plainly see that Mulhall-Orlando students have a style all of their own.

Justin Day, Jaramie Karcher, Bradley Harman, and Bo Martin show their college spirit by wearing their OU and OSU shirts to school.

As I walked around the grade school waiting for the perfect moment to capture my subjects, I was amazed at how much it had changed since I was down at the elementary school. For instance, the flag ceremony every morning with singing and pledging, also the morning opening exercises. But taking a closer look I noticed how much things have stayed the same. The smiling faces and eager chatter mixed with good morning greetings. These things I hope will never change, even though "Ya Gotta Move With Style!"

Our visiting sculptor, James Hulesman, helps Anya McAnally and Lori Rothermel pick out their final piece that will be baked.

Above: Kindergartener Stephanie Harrell is starting the good habit of listening to her teacher. This habit will help her as she starts her long climb to the end of her school days. We wish her good luck for she is part of our future.

The task of checking math papers is taken on by Dani Green and Laurie Cyphers.

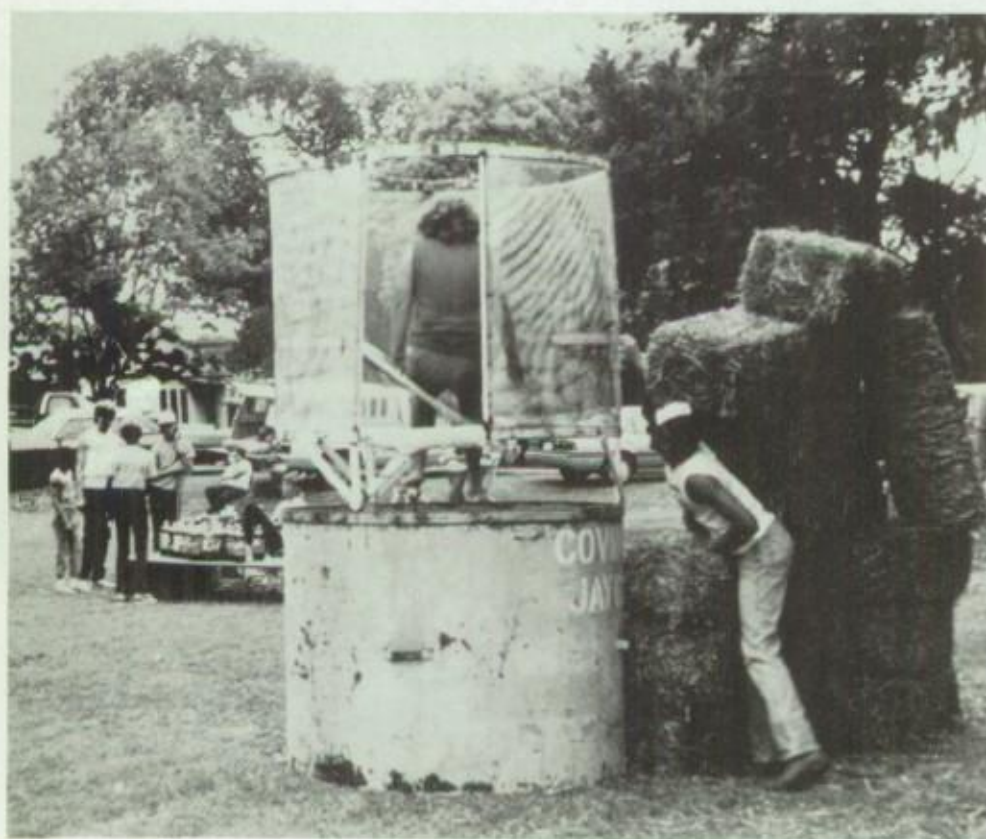

Jason Harman looks to his teacher for further instruction.

The day is started off with a salute to our flag. Dwayne Golay, Jerry Ballinger, Chad Gallaway, Winter Cyphers, Mrs. Kindschi, Matthew Pfeiffer, Justin Cyphers, Julie Gallaway, Jennifer Kerby, Carol Fagan, Rocky Burgess, and Marcus Wray.

Better than Braum's! Shawn McNally at one of the Junior fair booths.

A little help from a friend?? Shelley Schmiedbauer bravely endures the cold water, and Stacy Golay is the lurking figure in this game of dunking.

The finishing touches. Charles Hilburn and Kevin Andrews make topical maps in Mrs. Jones' class.

"What harm can a little taste do?" Rusty Prince and Machel Bode make Christmas cookies.

Students Against Driving Drunk is one way M-O students are taking a stand against negative peer pressure. Gracie White, pins a SADD button on Becky Jack to show they are willing to protest against a terrible act that is killing thousands of teenagers every year.

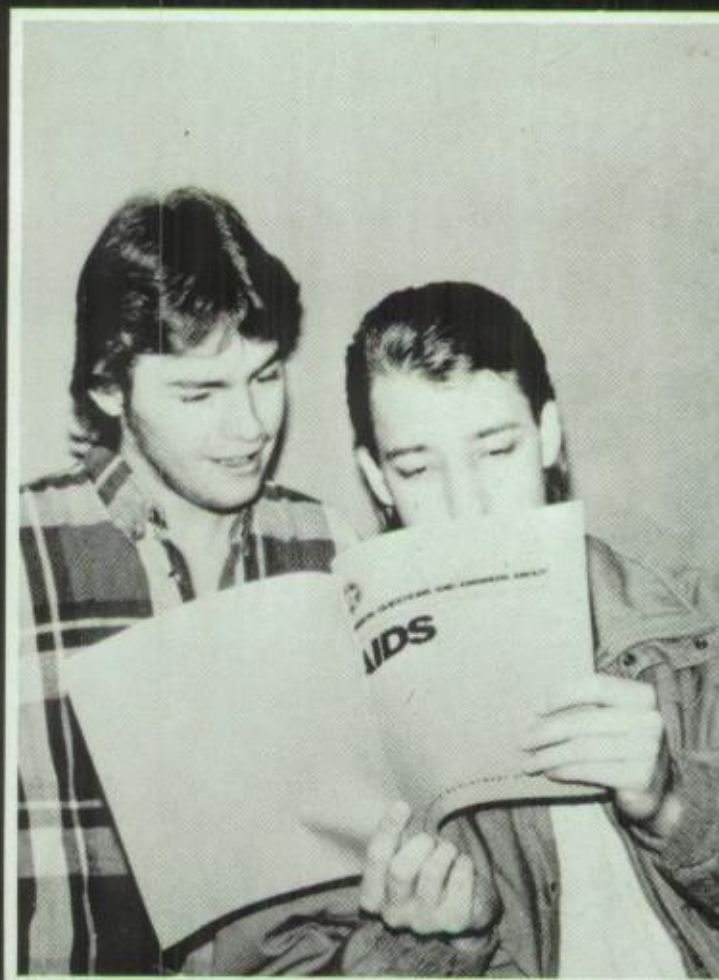

Rodney Silvers, SADD President and Rochelle Henke, judge posters the grader school students entered to get the SADD theme across, "DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE."

Christy Prince shows Jr. Burgess and Greg Major the 'Challenge 88' SADD T-shirt used as a prize in the grade school poster contest.

Drug prevention and AIDS have been issues our school has taken head on this year and brought into a new light. Many teenagers have found themselves pushed into doing something they really don't want to do. Whether it's our own teachers, our peers, an actress, or even the school mascot, M-O students are getting the message to "Just Say No." The AIDS classes were taught by our own teachers at M-O, and things we learned were discussed for quite awhile. Being informed is the first step in prevention of this disease that strikes anyone, no matter their race or sex. Quest was a class taught by Mrs. Sprouse to the eighth grade for one semester to help them gain self-confidence and to learn more about themselves. A first-ever "Oklahoma Alliance Against Drugs" was formed, and students as well as adults all across the state participated in this program. Representatives from our school included Mrs. Sprouse, April Peveto and Sarah Pfeiffer. To put this information to use, they talked to grade school students to help them realize they can set a style of their own by living a drug-free life.

Out Of The Dark

To KNOW
NO

Sometimes it helps kids understand when the teachers are closer to their age. Sarah Pfeiffer, Mrs. Sprouse, and April Peveto talk to the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades about drug awareness and their freedom to choose the life-style they wish to live.

Jill Woody brought to M-O, her acting abilities and demonstrated different anxieties of an alcoholic through her SURRENDER program, a dramatic approach to drugs.

A hot topic this year was AIDS Education. This year all schools were required to teach students the facts about AIDS. Mrs. Raupe teaches Steve Haggard, Mark Hood and Shelly Johnson all she learned at the classes teachers were required to take before educating M-O students.

Learning is fun when action is involved. The Quest students have a bike-a-thon as a fundraiser, riding from Orlando to Mulhall during their sixth hour class.

For Kids Who Have It All

Steve Tyler and Stacy Golay's love of nature has reached the "Bambi" level. They explain to instructor Ball how to hunt deer safely in the great outdoors.

The very latest in womb overachievers! Now really, Tim Roberts, do you think your rabbit will compete with Teddy Ruxpin? The judges Horace Sprouse and Peggy Yost.

Assessing the impact. Chris Hopper's ping-pong ball launcher was one of the finalists. The entry of lightest weight and most accuracy get the best score here.

"Back up Denny Bussard, this may self-destruct in 30 second." Janet Weinkauf project won top honors in the local fair even though she says she "put it together the last two days before the fair because having a fair project was a class requirement."

Big impact with little effect. Mr. Ball tests Tracy Karcher's egg drop. For next year's fair Tracy says he is going to "try to find something else to put an egg in."

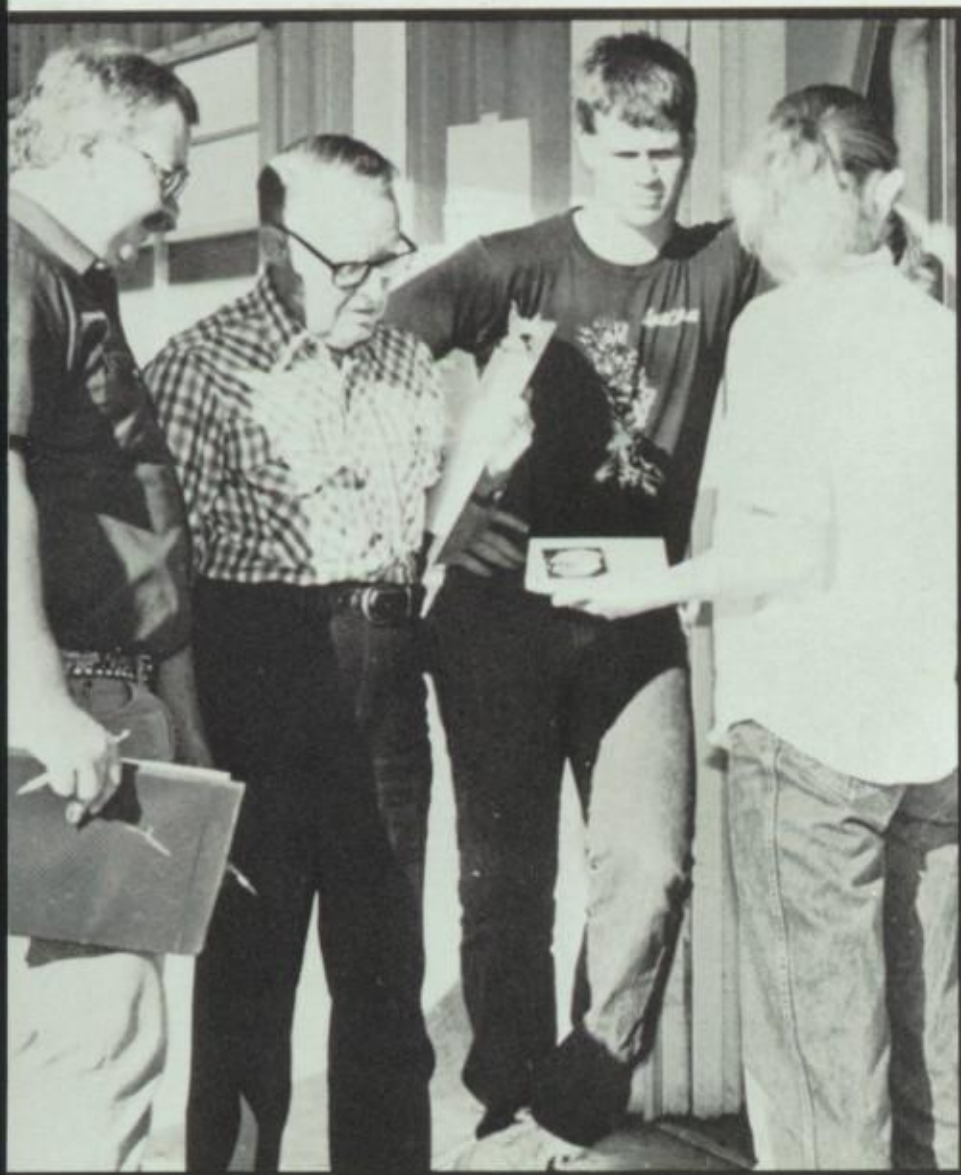

Q & A

Q. How do science fairs help students?

Mr. Ball: They learn to plan ahead, use a set of criteria, and come up with a working project. They benefit socially and scholastically through competition with other high schools in the region at Central State University and at the engineering fair at Oklahoma University. We had good enthusiasm and good projects.

Connelly Wade: Science fairs give us a kind of hands-on experience. They can explain how some of the fascinating things of the science world work and live. They also give us an open look at people who excel in science and give them credit for a job well done. (Connelly had the second place exhibit in the local fair. His research topic was "Saving our Endangered Species.")

A few fine-tuning points and this will operate perfectly. (Rodney Silvers)

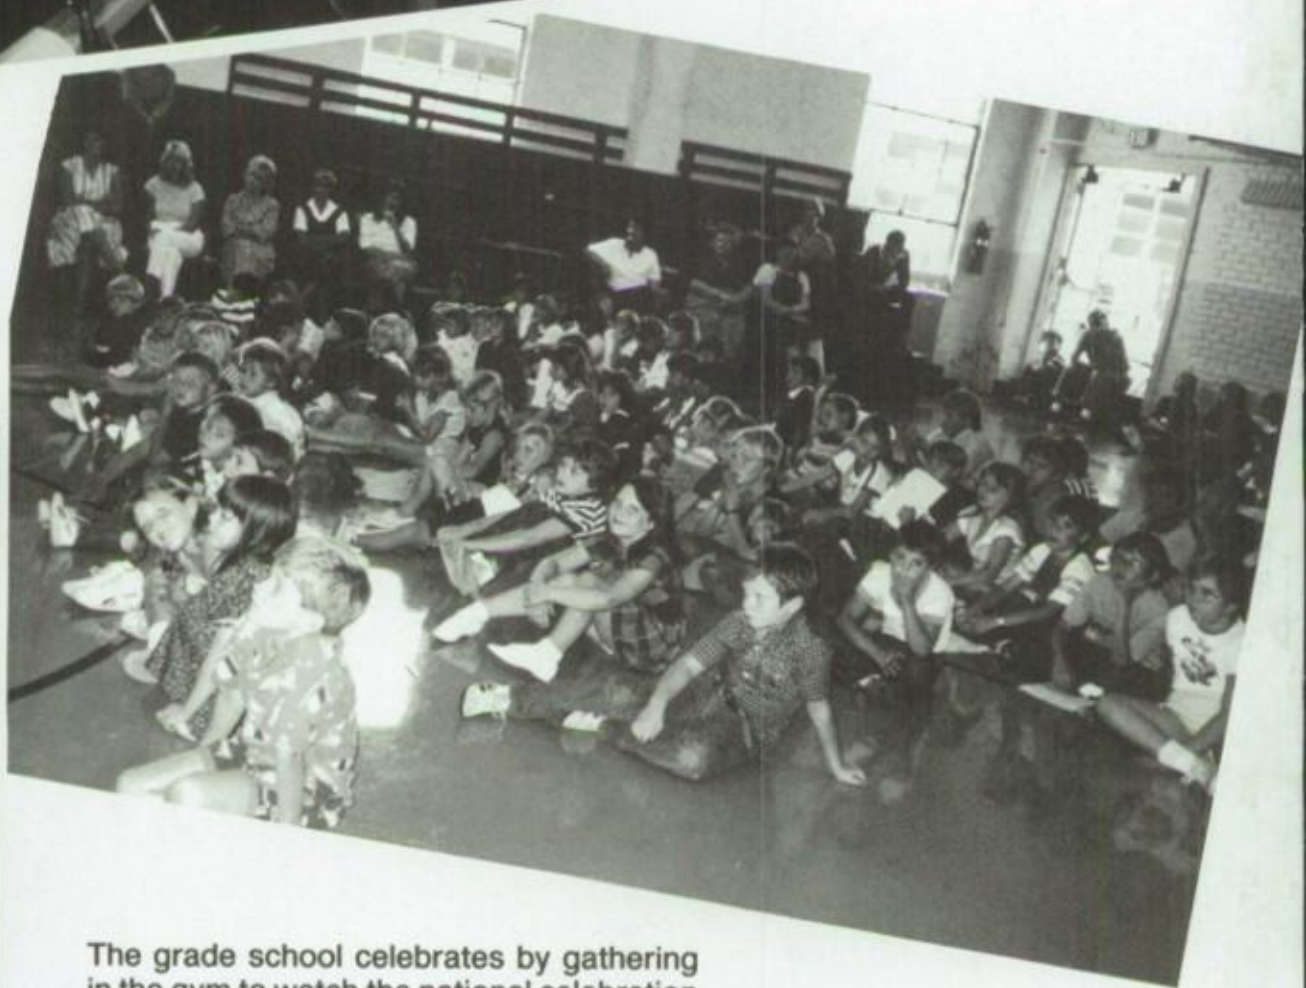

Now to come up with a brand name for this. Chris Hopper is intrigued by Kim Down's solar-powered fan. Fair judges are Hugh Merrill and Loran Toepfer.

We The People . . .

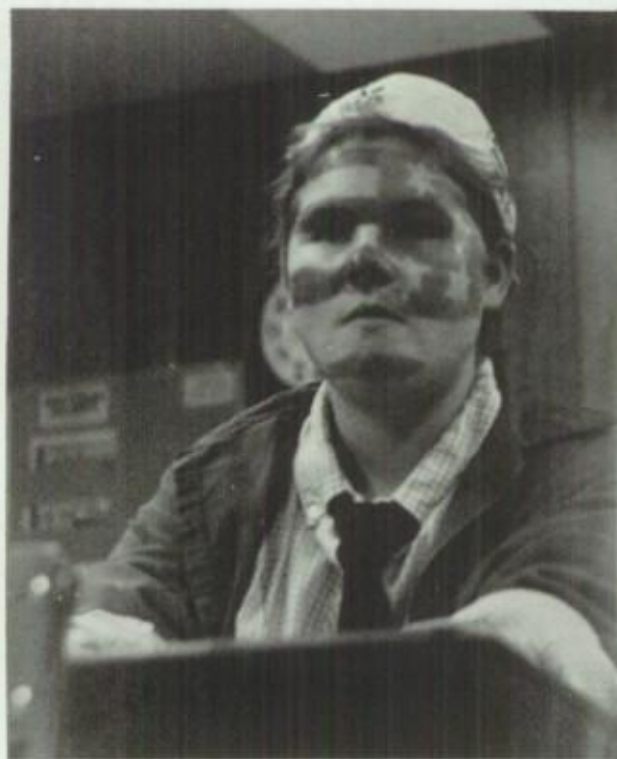

The Constitution of the United States of America was 200 years old on Wednesday, September 16, 1987. M-O students celebrated this milestone in our history. Mr. Sprouse talked briefly to the students about the importance of this great document. The high school was a little confused for a while because the satellite TV program broadcasting national ceremonies was in Spanish.

As the high school band gets ready to perform "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "America The Beautiful," April Peveto and Stacey Sylvester give seventh grade clarinet players Brandy Thomason and Michelle Knight last minute pointers.

The grade school celebrates by gathering in the gym to watch the national celebration on TV. The sixth grade band played "America." The seniors of 1990 have a style all their own. It may be a little different, but it's their style. The Sophomore year is a trying time for most because the students try their best not to be like everyone else, but not all succeed. This class has a unique ability that just can't be snuffed out by anyone, and their style will carry on through the years.

Sleep is on the minds of M-O Juniors. Shaunna Peretto, Shawn McAnally, Shelley Schmiedbauer, Amy Leach, Jeff Roberts and Stacey Sylvester look vaguely interested in what's going on while wishing they were at home in bed.

Juniors

ALWAYS HAVE THE STYLE"

"Gosh, I miss recess!" was one way Kyla Huff, a member of the Junior class, feels about life at M-O High. Even though Angela Koch describes our Junior year as "the year before our Senior year," it's not that simple.

One of the most interesting jobs was planning the prom. There were endless arguments, and even a little violence at committee meetings, but as time came to an end, things were worked out to make a Jr/Sr Prom done with style.

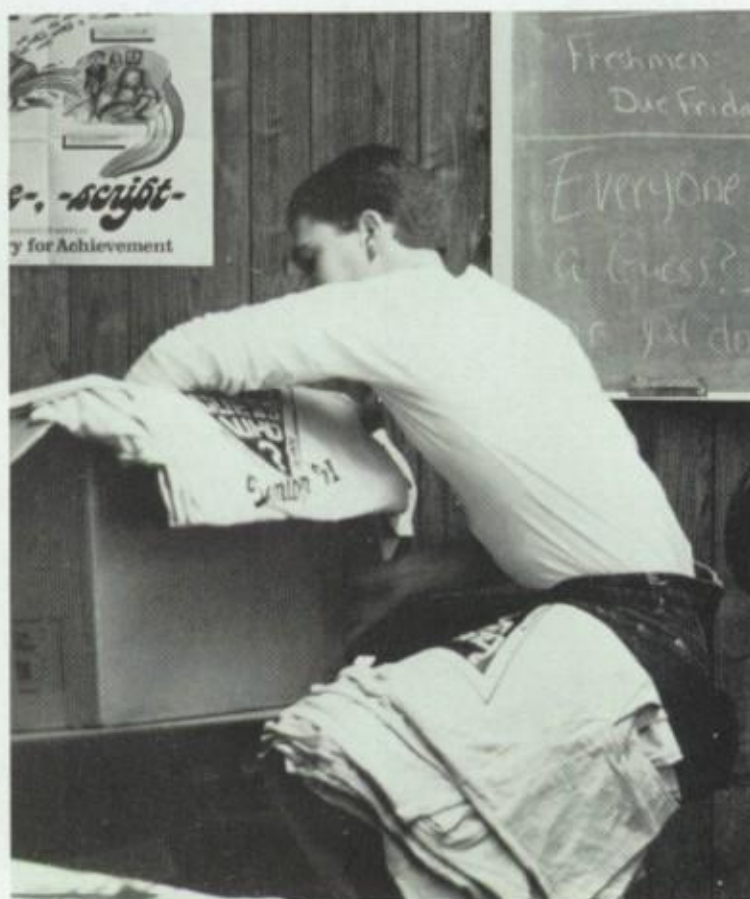

For most Juniors the advantages are getting to drive to school and being treated as upperclassmen. Stacey Sylvester thinks that Juniors are faced with "more freedom but tougher subjects," she says with a definite frown. "I don't like our Junior year because we're all split up in different classes" was a negative feeling from Shelley Schmiedbauer.

Whether working on class fund-raisers or just hanging around with friends before school, the Junior class will "always have the style."

"Why am I here?" seems to be the question Rochelle Henke asks herself as she relaxes against her locker.

Guess? shirts were on the minds of students from M-O when the Juniors sold their original design. Brian Duncan sorts out the final product.

“It’s not whether you win or lose, it’s how you look while you’re doing it!” Chances are, if you’ve got your socks turned down and your high-tops on with your shirt comfortably untucked and your shorts as baggy as possible, you’re ready for a good-looking game of basketball. To the more game-oriented person it might take determination, hard work, and skill to play with style. The sports style in ‘88 seemed to be a lot of both.

Ya

Not quite to the top

Genelle Koch pitches with determination in the district tournament against Red Rock.

With the score 10-0, Becky Knopf is up with total confidence to bring in the eleventh run.

Even though the Lady Panthers had what it took to make it to state, they fell to Okarche in the first round in regional play-offs. They did not make it as far as planned but still had a successful year. The Panthers took second place in the Perkins tournament, became district champs by defeating Red Rock, and ended the season with a record of 9 wins and 4 losses. The team was led by seniors Genelle Koch and Becky Knopf, who both made the all-state team, Genelle as pitcher and Becky as outfield alternate.

WHERE SPIRIT SPARKLES

M-O cheerleaders, all sophomores, and Mo the mascot were really excited this year. This was the first year to be a cheerleader for Gracie, Staci, Kristie, and Sarah. They couldn't agree on what was the most fun, selling raffle tickets or making and selling buttons. The spirit buttons were made by Sarah's and Jonene Bode's parents and were sold by the cheerleaders too. The Agra game is something to talk about, says Susie Fishburn. We had everyone's support. We've really become good friends this year and it's been exciting."

Right: Mo entertains the fans at a basketball game, and they loved it! Mo enjoys about the same status as Santa Claus — little kids ask their parents to take them to see the Panther!

Below: Susie and Kristie

Troy Hanes goes in for a lay-up with the defense in his face.

Jennifer Barker brings the ball up with ease as she dribbles through Cashion's pressure of-fense.

Anthony Redman shoots for two as Danny Hopkins and Jeff Day go in for the rebound.

The grade school girls win a tough first place over Pond Creek-Hunter in the Billings tournament, with a final score of 24-23.

Here is where style shows the most. Your club can have a lot of influence on your style. An FFA member tends to wear boots and blue jeans while an FHA member tends to have that pulled-together look. And that wild speechie — who knows what he'll be wearing next! The funny thing about all this is that it could very well be the same person.

Beth Bussard leads her sheep around the ring in the Junior Division Shepherd's Walk, which she later won.

mie Gallaway and Emily Driskel ask for help to design their shirts at a workshop at Mini-Roundup.

When April Peveto and Connelly Wade wrote essays on "What Citizenship Means To Me," they didn't know that weeks later they would be on a tour bus with many other rowdy teenagers, seeing the sights of Washington, D.C., Pennsylvania, Virginia, Missouri, and Tennessee. The top essays were picked out of each county and the winners were awarded this trip to Washington, D.C. with a chance to meet with some officials of the government. April thought the trip was fun: "Although it was exciting to actually visit Washington, D.C., the best part of the trip was meeting people from all over the United States. And we were able to meet with our Senators and Representatives to ask questions and get to know 'the system.' " Connelly saw many different aspects of the nation's capital: "Oklahoma took three tour buses and we drove all night. That was a bummer sleeping on the bus but you got to know everyone personally on your bus. We met Senators Boren and Nichols and listened to each speak and I had lots of fun talking to my congressmen. We ate all kinds of wonderful new food like escargot and squid. I loved it!"

FFA: Excellence In Action

The group of FFA members who attended the National Convention are Front Row: Connelly Wade, Becky Knopf, Chris Anthis, and Brian Duncan. Back Row: Casey Gorrell, Chris Hopfer, Trey Fillmore, Stacy Golay, and Tracy Karcher.

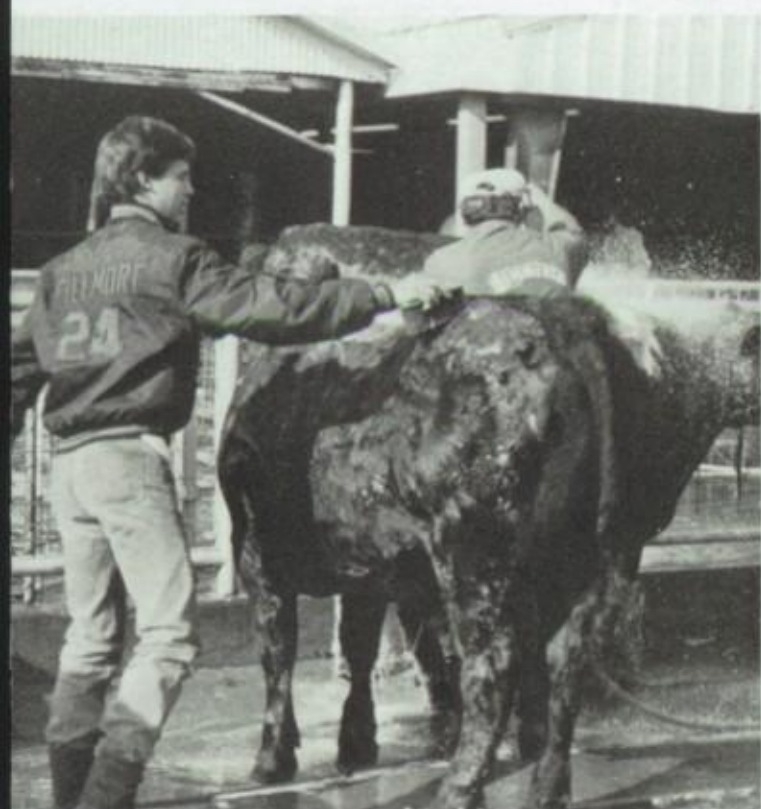

The FFA Sweetheart for 1987-88 is Becky Knopf.

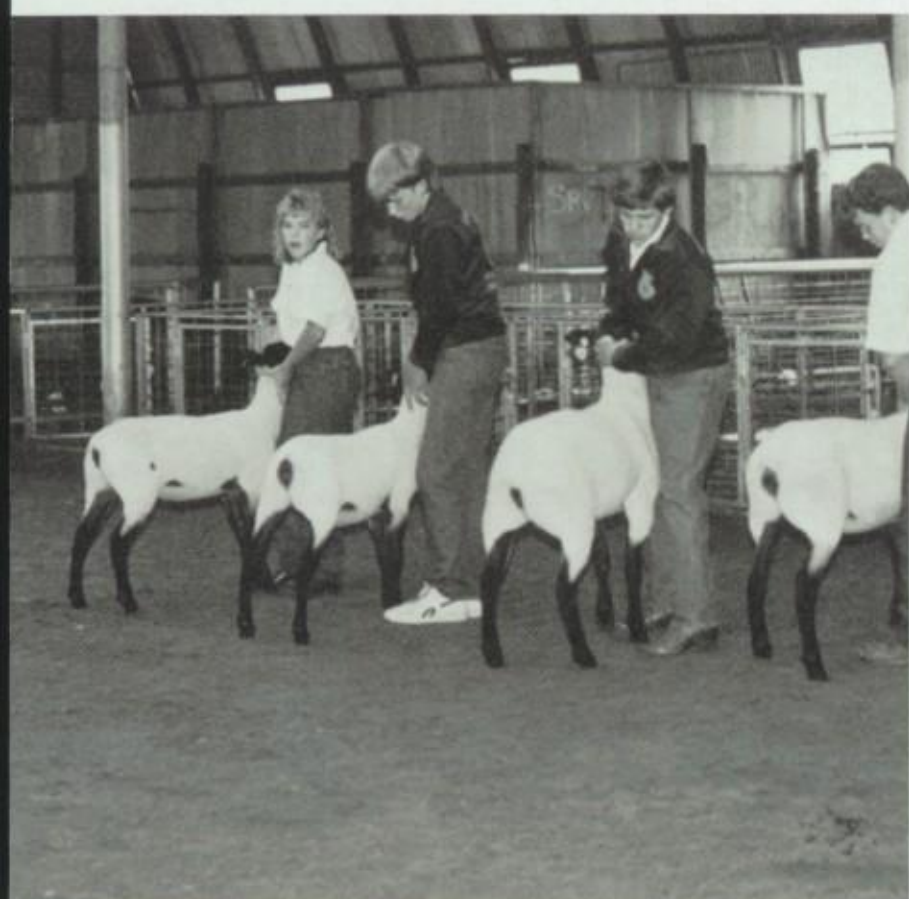

B. J. Graef, Brian Duncan, and Paul Fag show examples of the Blue and Gold Sausage that was sold by the FFA, totaling more than 1200 packages.

SPEECHIES!!

Oh no! They're back again and as lively as ever. This year four members made it to Regionals with their mouths open and their voices loud. April Peveto broke in Poetry. Janet Weinkauff broke in Poetry and Humorous Interpretation. Stephenie Bussard went in Prose and Rochelle Henke competed in Poetry. Everywhere they went — Blackwell, Okeene, Langston, O.C.S. or Kingfisher — people knew where they were. And the motto of the year seemed to be "Oh no, not that judge again, she hates me!" Was that just an excuse or is it true some judges just don't like M-O Speechies?

Angela Koch and April Peveto rehearse their Humorous Duet, "Strife Faces Jan." This take-off on soap operas got many laughs, mainly from the performers themselves. Angela plays Jan, a poor city girl, and April is her dear friend Portia.

Kyla Huff recites "Six Full Hours," a poem about the hard work of being a teacher.

Members of the Speech Club take a break from their skit "The Phone Callers." Shawn McAnally, Stacey Sylvester, Rochelle Henke and Brian Duncan performed in the Radio Show as four people in different phone conversations at the same time.

FUTURE

Career Day was only one of the student body functions that the student council was involved in this year. They also were in charge of the yearly bon-fire to get the M-O students pepped up for homecoming. The student council also sold Hershey Kisses for Valentine's Day, and last but not least put on the yearly spring dance. The student council's main concern is the students in our school, and they work hard to give you the activities you want to make your school year more exciting. Siskel and Ebert should go out on a limb and give the M-O Student Council TWO THUMBS UP.

TUNES FOR OUR TIMES

Tim Roberts gives Mr. C. a request as to what he should play during the annual band dance in October.

The band trip in April of 1987 was a very interesting one. After participating in the contest, a guest director helped us by telling us what we did wrong and how we could help it. Afterwards, we relaxed with a leisurely trip to the St. Louis zoo, one of the largest in the world.

The 1987 band banquet was held in May. King and queen for the year were Clancy Thomas and Kyla Huff, prince and princess were Ryan Wiss and Shanon Sylvester, and sweetheart and beau were Denise Rothermel and Michael Payne. Many awards were handed out for outstanding playing ability and various other things. Susie Fishburn received an award for helping out the band greatly by doing many favors.

The 1984-88 band year was a very memorable one. Many activities topped the agenda, but those looked forward to most were the contests. Tri-State competition, districts and honor bands, along with pep band, proved to be very interesting. One thing looked forward to by all band students is the out-of-state trip taken annually. In April, 1987 we took a very long bus trip to St. Louis, MO and the great arch. In 1988 we traveled to Branson, MO and the Ozarks and went to Silver Dollar City. Even though band may sound like all fun, there is lots of work to do. Trips wouldn't be possible unless every student tries his or her hardest to sell items for our fundraisers. To compete well, hours of practice is necessary. To sum it all up, we're sure that every band member will agree that the 1987-88 band year was one of the most memorable ever.

Marching was an activity that proved to be rewarding during the year. With a few tips on how to march right from Mr. Cummings and a lot of practice, we were very excited about showing our skills at the Mulhall celebration and at OSU band day.

The grade school band performed at the Christmas program and the spring concert and showed just how much practice pays off.

Juanita Fitzpatrick, Betty Fishburn, and Evelyn Schwandt

High school cook Evelyn Schwandt's favorite thing to hear from the kids is "Give me everything!" One thing she would like to emphasize is "Eat your vegies!"

High school breakfast cook Juanita Fitzpatrick really enjoys working with the kids. She says being around them really keeps you young.

"Bea" Fishburn's love is also evident by the smile she has for each person who passes through the lunch line.

Elizabeth Cyphers and Reba Fitzpatrick

Lunch is always ready by eleven o'clock at the elementary school cafeteria. Elizabeth and Reba then have time to look at the menus and think about tomorrow's lunch before the students line up for a Class A meal.

A salad bar was added this year, which is especially enjoyed by the teachers.

Richard Andrews and Tom Wray are the first to eat each day, and Tom says being allowed to eat at the cafeteria is the best part of his job.

Why the Floors are Clean

Richard Andrews might be called "Mr. Dependability" at the M-O elementary school. He's always there when anyone needs him. The best part of his job is "being around the kids," he says. Richard helps at the high school, too, by transporting chairs, tables, and other items that are shared by the two schools. He picks up commodities and school purchases in nearby towns.

Since the elementary school does not have a full time principal, Richard is the person who answers the telephone when Mrs. Yost is in the classroom.

Glenda Prince, high school custodian, and Tom Wray.

Glenda's responsibilities range from keeping the dirt and mud out of the classrooms and cafeteria every day to moving furniture after one of our plays, assemblies, or concerts. She is on hand at every basketball game in case a crisis occurs (and one usually does). This year she helped in the concession stand when the traffic was heavy.

In the summertime Tom helped Glenda with the painting and repair work. Junior Meyer, Glenda's dad, helps keep the gym in shape during the school year and helps with the maintenance work in the summer. Glenda's husband Jake and son Rusty frequently give her a hand after school.

One of the busiest days of the year for the custodians is the day the floor is waxed in the gym before the M-O tournament.

Tom Wray is bus mechanic and bus driver. He and Gerald Hannah drive the shuttle buses between the schools each morning and evening.

Betty Kindschi's and Gladys Wooten's routes begin and end at the high school. They both say they love their jobs because the kids keep them young and keep them informed about what's going on. One of Betty's first grade riders told her she wanted to be "a bus driver just like you" when she grew up. Gladys says she takes the muddy roads in stride — nothing keeps her from enjoying her job.

As the year comes to an end so do many of its styles. Coca-Cola shirts and stone-washed jeans will soon be replaced by . . . who knows? Style as we know it today will take on a new meaning for tomorrow as 1989 brings us hundreds of fresh fads to follow. However, fads will come and fads will go: the only sure way to stay in style is to create your very own.
